Message from the Chairman

Prof. B.J. Habibie

If 2009 was the year in which Indonesians - following the successful presidential and legislative elections - celebrated a notable step in their country's long road towards democratic consolidation, 2010 was a stark reminder that we should never underestimate the many challenges that threaten our hard-won freedoms. The past year witnessed increasing levels of fundamentalism and religious intolerance, shocking incidences of human rights abuses, and outrageous cases of corruption. Clearly The Habibie Center's motto of "Democratization must not die" is as relevant today as it was during its formation 11 years ago. To this end, The Habibie Center spent 2010 conducting numerous activities that addressed a broad range of issues encompassing politics & economics, society & religion, and education & science and technology among others. Of particular note was the work The Habibie Center did on conflict prevention and peaceful development. This has become one of The Habibie Center's main topics and we seek to address the aforementioned rise in religious intolerance and fundamentalism. Furthermore, recognising that our efforts must involve stakeholders from all levels of society - ranging from national to regional and international - and looking forward to Indonesia's Chairmanship of ASEAN in 2011, the Habibie Center also launched its ASEAN Studies Programme. All the above demonstrates clearly The Habibie Center's continued desire to be at the forefront of Indonesia's democratic consolidation process and to build upon the strong foundations it has established from its 11 years in existence. For this, I would like to express my heartfelt appreciation to all of The Habibie Center's staff, partners and supporters for their hard work and dedication.

B.J. Habibie

Message from The Board of Directors

Indonesia is a country rightly lauded for the many impressive achievements it has notched since it embarked on its long road towards democratic consolidation. Despite this, we should always be mindful of the fact that every journey is not without its mishaps or obstacles. The events of 2010 demonstrate the many challenges Indonesia still faces today and is also a reminder that where a strong government and strong leadership are found wanting, it is up to those of us in the civil society sector to step up and fill that role. The Habibie Center has not been shy to play its part.

Over the past year, The Habibie Center has focused on the many issues that have made the headlines and played a key part in providing solutions and contributions in order to help mitigate them. For example, to combat the rising levels of religious violence and intolerance, The Habibie Center held a number of activities (both independently and in collaboration with others) related to conflict prevention and peaceful development. This included the publication of a policy paper on a National Grand Strategy for Conflict Prevention and Peaceful Development in partnership with the World Bank and Bappenas.

Similarly, with Indonesia's coming chairmanship of ASEAN in 2011 and the regional organisation's vision of an ASEAN Community to be achieved by 2015, The Habibie Center successfully launched its ASEAN Studies Programme to examine all aspects involved including the implication of ASEAN Free Trade Agreements on Indonesia's economy among others.

Rather than resting on our laurels, The Habibie Center has entered its 11th year as an organization with continued dedication and purpose, all of which would not be possible without the support and contribution of its staff, partners and supporters. We thank them all and express our sincerest gratitude.

Ahmad Watik Pratiknya

Foreword

Executive Director

Since its inception, The Habibie Center has always been focused on the issues of democracy and human rights within Indonesia. However as the boundaries between national and regional become less and less distinct and as democracy and human rights become increasingly regarded as issues of transnational concern, The Habibie Center made the conscious decision to give greater attention on democracy and human rights issues at the level of ASEAN and Asia. Thus 2010 saw the launch of the ASEAN Studies Programme. The launch was particularly pertinent given Indonesia's coming chairmanship of ASEAN in 2011. Since the launch, The Habibie Center has already made significant contributions in the field of ASEAN, touching on subjects as broad as the ASEAN-China FTA and ICT in ASEAN. Beyond the ASEAN region and demonstrating our global outreach, The Habibie Center held a series of activities examining issues surrounding recent developments in Taiwan's Foreign Policy in relation to its greater economic integration with mainland China and East Asia.

Another major theme of The Habibie Center during 2010 focused on conflict prevention and peaceful development. This too, was particularly appropriate given the rise of religious intolerance and communal violence that has sadly been witnessed in Indonesia over the past year. The Habibie Center's activities on this theme included holding a discussion on Peace in the Community: Can Conflict be prevented?", a media literacy program on "Voicing Diversity and Tolerance to the Young Generation through Media Literacy" (in partnership with USAID and SERASI), and a policy paper publication on a National Grand Strategy for Conflict Prevention and Peaceful Development" (in partnership with the World Bank and Bappenas).

Looking back over the past year, The Habibie Center is proud of its contributions and continues to steadfastly push its agenda of democracy and human rights nationally and now regionally. My sincerest gratitude goes to all those who have helped The Habibie Center in its endeavours.

Advancing Democratization Process in Indonesia

Reflection 2009 and 2010 Perspective “Irony of Democracy: The Non-Populist People’s Government”

15 January 2010, The Habibie Center

The Habibie Center (THC) held a seminar entitled “Irony of Democracy: The Non-Populist People’s Government”, as part of its annual reflection and perspective series. Prof. Dr. Dewi Fortuna Anwar acted as moderator, while members of THC’s research team -- Sumarno, Lilis Mulyani, and Zamroni Salim – were the main speakers. The team discussed key political, legal and economic issues in Indonesia during 2009, after which the researchers presented their 2010 outlooks. The event, held at THC headquarters in Jakarta, was attended by several government officials, activists, businessmen and media persons.

Politics – Sumarno, a political researcher at THC, raised several issues, such as the 2009 general election and the new applied political party system. He called for the government to both consolidate democracy and simplify the political party system, arguing that the latter would result in a more powerful government presidential system and more effective decision making.

Law – Lilis Mulyani, a law expert at THC, discussed major legal events which shook Indonesia in 2009. Referring to two cases -- Bibit-Chandra and Prita Mulyasari --, Mulyani argued that mass mobilization through social media can be an effective law enforcement tool. Mulyani also delivered five recommendations for the government to improve Indonesia's legal institutions and law enforcement in the future: 1) to reform law enforcement institutions (e.g. police, prosecutors and the Judicial Commission); 2) to optimize internal and external controls of law enforcement institutions in order to enhance professionalism and accountability while carrying out duties and functions; 3) a need for support from the government and other state institutions, such as the People's Representative Council (DPR); 4) a need to reform legislation and awareness of law enforcement officers; 5) and to pay attention to moral cases and protest movements against law enforcement which undermine community.

Economy – Dr. Zamroni Salim, THC's economics researcher, highlighted the bailout of Century Bank as the "hottest" issue of 2009, citing its multi-dimensional aspects. In terms of Dr. Salim's 2010 outlook, he said the government should focus on the free trade agreement between the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) and China. He added that the government is required to make improvements towards Indonesia's economic structure and industry in order to see growth amid competition from imports.

Competition, Discussion and Cartoon Exhibition

24-27 May 2010, The Habibie Center

THC ran a cartoon competition and exhibition designed to motivate the general public towards criticizing and appreciating efforts to eradicate corruption.

"Fighting Corruption Must Go On" was opened by THC Communications Director Andi Makmur Makka.

Afterwards, a discussion -- "Eradicating Corruption Must Go On" -- was held. It was attended by Erry Riyana H., former Vice Head of Corruption Eradication Commission (KPK) and Febri Diansyah of Indonesia Corruption Watch, with THC's Lilis Mulyani moderating the event.

Outlining how corruption can occur, Riyana said: "Corruption happens when intention and opportunity meet, and, of course, a weak system exists".

He also argued that Indonesia should learn from its experiences. "Being preventive and repressive in eradicating corruption and government's commitment is the key," he said.

Addressing the audience, Diansyah said

Indonesia failed on its promise to tackle corruption in the post-reformation era because it was not serious about handling its many unresolved graft cases. He said that although Indonesia's Corruption Eradication Commission (KPK) is at present dedicated to eradicating corruption, it is constantly under attack. As such, his advice was "to have a total reform within the law enforcement institutions through education and preventive measures, to minimize easy bail and to give harsh sentences towards corruptors, to strengthen watchdog institutions; to reinforce the KPK, and to form independent investigations."

Among the first events of the day was a discussion: "Peace in the Community: Can Conflict be prevented?" ASEAN Studies Program

To be the Center of Excellence of ASEAN Related Issues

The Habibie Center Launches ASEAN Studies Program; Holds Discussion on “Implications of the ASEAN-China Free Trade Agreement (ACFTA) on the Indonesian Economy”

24 February 2010, The Habibie Center

As part of its initiative to “go regional”, THC launched the ASEAN Studies Program. The program specifically, although not exclusively, studies and researches issues surrounding democracy and human rights.

As its maiden event, the ASEAN Studies Program held a discussion on the “Implications of the ASEAN-China Free Trade Agreement on the Indonesian Economy”. Prof. Dr. Muladi SH, THC Chairman of the Board of Director, and Drs. Djauhari Oratmangun, Director General of ASEAN Cooperation Ministry of Foreign Affairs of the Republic of Indonesia, delivered introductory remarks at the ceremony, which was held at THC headquarters.

The aims of the debate were three-fold: firstly, to provide a better understanding of ASEAN and its regulations; secondly, to explore ACFTA’s benefits and challenges to Indonesia’s economy; and thirdly, to discuss the best approach to ACFTA, so that it can positively impact Indonesia’s economy and promote greater welfare for its citizens.

Speakers included Dr. Zamroni Salim, THC Economic Researcher, Ir. Thomas Darmawan, Permanent Chairman of the Food, Beverages and Tobacco Chamber of Commerce and Industry of Indonesia, and Ir. Subagio MM, Director General of Domestic Trade of the Ministry of Trade Republic of Indonesia. Prof. Dr. Dewi Fortuna Anwar, THC Research and Program

Director, moderated the discussion.

In support of the new research program, The Habibie Center said the involvement of CSO's, such as THC, will be key in implementing the "ASEAN Community" and its three pillars of cooperation - economic, political and security, and socio-cultural. THC desires to help foster integration through community-building processes, endorsing ASEAN's commitment to create a more "people-centered" organization.

ASEAN 2.0: Information, Communication and Technology (ICT) for Government and People in ASEAN

12 April 2010, The Habibie Center

The Habibie Center held a round table discussion on the theme of "ASEAN 2.0: ICT, Governance and Community in Southeast Asia". The discussion, held at THC's office in Jakarta, raised several ICT issues concerning the governments and citizens of ASEAN's member states.

Participants included representatives from various institutions, such as Emmanuel C. Lallana of Philippines NGO IdeaCorp, Pavin Chachavalpongpun of the Institute of Southeast Asian Studies, Djauhari Oratmangun of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Nazaruddin Nasution of the State Islamic University, Tony Hartono of Microsoft Indonesia, Santhi Serad of the Institute for Democratization of Science and Technology, a THC unit, and Adi Indrayanto from Institute Teknologi Bandung.

Lallana, who also acts as a representative of ASEAN, outlined ICT's benefits and advantages, which include promoting and fostering national identity through networking. He categorized ICT as either horizontal (pertaining to businesses, researchers, NGO's and social organizations) or vertical (for countries).

It is hoped that recommendations from the discussion will be implemented by ASEAN.

The Habibie Center Organizes Focus Group Discussion “Tracking Down Gender Mainstreaming in Indonesia: Can We Achieve the Millennium Development Goals in 2015?”

23 June 2010, The Habibie Center
A focus group discussion (FGD) was held to identify problems in the implementation of the gender mainstreaming process, as a means of evaluating programs and policy strategies in Indonesia. The FGD was one in a series to promote gender mainstreaming.

Based on the evaluation, the discussion group found there should be action to reformulate future strategies to better implement Indonesia’s gender mainstreaming agenda to meet the United Nation’s Millennium Development Goals in 2015.

Among those attending the discussion was: Titi Sumbung from the Women Empowerment in Politics Center; Wanda Hamidah from Indonesia’s Parliament; Ratna Batara Munti from the Federation of the Association of Indonesian Women for Justice (APIK Federation); Hadar Gumay from Centre for Electoral Reform; representatives from the Women’s National Commission, Women’s Solidarity, Ministry of National Education, Ministry of Internal Affairs, Ministry of Coordinator of People’s Welfare, as well as parliamentary members from Jakarta and Depok.

Ani Soetjipto from University of Indonesia and Siti Khadijahn Nasutuan from the Ministry of Women Empowerment acted as key speakers, while THC’s Lilis Mulyani was moderator.

The discussion identified several fundamental obstacles in the implementation of gender mainstreaming. Wanda Hamidah raised concerns that the main problem in advocating gender mainstreaming was in Jakarta's parliament, while Sumbung stressed a need to change attitudes towards it. Other participants also presented their findings and experiences in promoting women rights.

At its conclusion, the discussion raised some important findings. Firstly, that the parliamentary decision-making process hinders gender mainstreaming. In addition, to promote gender mainstreaming requires a change in the mindsets of both men and women. Gender mainstreaming, it was argued, also needs to be incorporated into the national curriculum in early education. Finally, there is a need for the cooperation and involvement of all parties, government, civil society and both women and men in reaching gender equality.

Strategic Agenda on Rights of Women Migrant Workers Workshop

10-12 March 2010,
Hotel Horison, Bekasi

THC organized a three-day workshop called, "Strategic Agenda on Rights of Women Migrant Workers", in Bekasi, West Java. Around 150 people attended the workshop, which addressed problems facing Indonesian migrant workers, such as from family left behind, abuse in the workplace, and giving birth overseas. Among its objectives were to identify key and strategic issues regarding the protection of female migrant workers, including children's education and welfare when living abroad. In addition, the workshop analyzed factors that cause problems to reoccur.

The workshop was attended several prominent figures, including Linda Gumelar, the Minister of Women Empowerment and Child Protection, HR. Agung Laksono, Coordinating Minister for People's Welfare, Prof. Dr. ing Bacharuddin Jusuf Habibie, former President of Indonesia and Chairman of THC's Board of Trustees, and Sulasikin Murpratomo, former Minister of Women Empowerment who headed the event.

According to former President Habibie: "Plundered rights cases of Indonesian women migrant workers overseas happen particularly in informal sectors. These cases should be taken into account and the government should be able to provide solutions to prevent such cases from reoccurring."

He added that the Indonesian government should increase its sense of responsibility towards Indonesian migrant workers by playing an active role in financially supporting their departure.

"There should not be Indonesian migrant workers that should have to pay to work overseas. The government should be fully responsible, especially in the informal sector," Habibie argued. He said it was imperative that improvements in the quality of human resources should be conducted by the government.

HR. Laksono said that tackling the problems of Indonesian migrant worker overseas was a main priority during his first 100 days program as the Coordinating Minister of People's Welfare. "We have undertaken Indonesian migrant workers problems.

One of them was repatriated from the Middle East to Indonesia" he said.

Based on his experience and observations of many Indonesian migrant workers, HR. Laksono said such problems are caused by a lack of preparation, with around 80-90 percent of problematic migrant workers not sufficiently equipped before their departure.

Meanwhile, Gumelar explained that although the protection of Indonesian migrant workers is stipulated in Law No. 39 Year 2004 on Placement and Protection of migrant workers in Foreign Countries, there is minimal reference to female workers.

The law, she added, mostly governs the placement of migrant workers, explaining that of its 109 articles, only nine refer to their protection. Furthermore, she stressed that only one article contains the word "women", where it prohibits pregnant women from migrating.

"In terms of protection, it is very lacking," Gumelar said.

In its defense, Minister of Manpower and Transmigration, Muhaimin Iskandar, argued that the law increases the opportunities given to migrant worker recruitment agencies (PPTKIS). He said workers are able to find jobs overseas, adding that the government acts as a facilitator/mediator and provides protection to migrant workers.

Increasing an understanding, awareness and commitment towards workers was also discussed as an important part in building Indonesian democracy.

Between 60 and 70 people joined in with the discussion group, including representatives from the Coordinating Ministry of People's Welfare, the Ministry of Manpower and Transmigration, BNP2TKI, the Ministry of Law and Human Rights (Immigration), the Interior Ministry, the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, the Ministry of Communication and Information, the Ministry of Women Empowerment, the Ministry of Social Welfare, Ministry of Religion, police, parliament, academics and non-government organizations (NGO's).

Voicing Diversity and Tolerance to the Young Generation through Media Literacy: The Habibie Center-USAID-SERASI Project

March – October 2010,
Depok, Palu, Ambon

In today's information age, much of the younger generation relies heavily on mass media (e.g. print, electronic, and the Internet) to develop an understanding of the world. This extends also to insight into conflict, diversity, and tolerance in society.

Mindful of the potential influence of mass media, The Habibie Center designed a program to help develop the perception skills of school children towards such outlets. This included developing the ability to criticize and contextualize information.

The Habibie Center aspires that its media literacy program will help prevent conflict by promoting its message of understanding diversity and tolerance.

Through various activities, the media literacy program aimed to give members of the younger generation mastery of four skills;

- the ability to access media sources
- to analyze media content according to its context
- to criticize the mass media
- to create their own messages in various forms and types of media

The program was conducted in selected high schools in the conflict-prone areas of Depok, Palu (Central Sulawesi), and Ambon (Maluku).

Activities

Designing Module and Short Film

a) Modules

- The nature of mass media (media function and media content, the production and consumption of mass media)
- The importance of media literacy
- Potential problems in intercultural communication
- Tolerance: theory and practice in Indonesia
- Writing skills

THC enlisted the help of experts in producing the modules, and also held a focus group discussion on each module.

b) A short film: "Fighting for Nothing"

Film, it is said, is the most popular and effective medium to deliver a message toward the youth. After much discussion and research, “Fighting for Nothing” was produced within a two-month time frame. The film shows young people being provoked into fighting each other after media reports sparked feelings of discrimination and division. The film received a lot of feedback, and was successful in delivering the message that diversity is a must, and can be achieved through tolerance.

c) The pre- and post-test

Data was collected to measure a change in understanding of the high school children, and to determine the impact of the activities. As such, it also provided the program with an effective tool to evaluate its own success. Among the questions asked was what the students learnt from the workshop and how they would use their findings.

Demanding Ethical Responsibility in Mass Media Coverage

29 April 2010, The Habibie Center

The THC held a discussion on “Demanding Ethical Responsibility in Mass Media Coverage”, during which three speakers sat on the panel: Trans TV News Executive Producer Satrio Arismunandar; University of Indonesia’s Communications Expert Prof. Dr. Ibnu Hamad and; Agus Sudibyo, the Head of Complaints and Ethical Enforcement at the Indonesian Press Council.

Sudibyo said that, “in producing news, journalists do not only rely on one source, even though the source already has great credibility and accuracy.” He believes that news should present the views of various relevant sources in order to remain objective.

“News should be balanced. The principle is ‘to cover both sides,’” Sudibyo said.

Hamad argued that nowadays, news is a construction of reality, not reality itself. He added that, “news is not merely writing, describing and applying the five Ws [who, what, when, where, why] and one H [how], but it should be a discourse.”

Discourse was said to comprise of three parts: firstly, framing (knowledge, facts, imagination and morality); secondly, signing (verbal, non-verbal, graphic and placement); and thirdly, priming (the technique to present good writing in terms of time, context and place).

Meanwhile, Arismunandar argued that the press does not seek the intrinsic truth, since it is implausible to attain.

“The truth is the procedural truth”, he said.

The discussion moderated by A. Makmur Makka, THC’s Communications Director.

Independent Auditor's Report

The Habibie Center Foundation
Jakarta

We have audited the statements of financial position of The Habibie Center Foundation as of December 31, 2010 and 2009 and statements of activities and change of net asset and cash flows for the years then ended. These financial statements are the responsibility of the company's management. Our responsibility is to express an opinion on these financial statements based on our audits.

We conducted our audits in accordance with auditing standards established by the Indonesian Institute of Public Accountants. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement. An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. An audit also includes assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by the management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statements presentation. We believe that our audit provides a reasonable basis for our opinion.

In our opinion, the financial statements referred to above present fairly, in all material respects, the financial positions of The Habibie Center Foundation as of December 31, 2010 and 2009, and the results of it's operations, changes of net assets and cash flows for the years then ended in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles in Indonesia.

Kami melaksanakan audit berdasarkan standar auditing yang ditetapkan Institut Akuntan Publik Indonesia. Suatu audit meliputi pemeriksaan atas dasar pengujian, bukti-bukti yang mendukung jumlah-jumlah dan pengungkapan dalam laporan keuangan. Audit juga meliputi penilaian atas prinsip akuntansi yang digunakan dan estimasi signifikan yang dibuat oleh manajemen, serta penilaian terhadap penyajian laporan keuangan secara keseluruhan. Kami yakin bahwa audit kami memberikan dasar memadai untuk menyatakan pendapat.

We conducted our audits in accordance with auditing standards established by the Indonesian Institute of Certified Public Accountants. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement. An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. An audit also includes assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation. We believe that our audits provide a reasonable basis for our opinion.

Menurut pendapat kami, laporan keuangan yang kami sebut di atas menyajikan secara wajar, dalam semua hal yang material, posisi keuangan YAYASAN SUMBER DAYA MANUSIA DALAM ILMU PENGETAHUAN DAN TEKNOLOGI (YAYASAN SDM-IPTEK) tanggal 31 Desember 2010 serta hasil aktivitas dan arus kas untuk tahun yang berakhir pada tanggal tersebut sesuai dengan prinsip akuntansi yang berlaku umum di Indonesia.
